INDIGENOUS LEADERSHIP ASSOCIATE OF ARTS

Education from an Indigenous American perspective is our unique focus. Leech Lake Tribal College offers an A.A. Degree in Indigenous Leadership. This degree integrates Indigenous American studies, contemporary and traditional arts, social studies, humanities, and natural sciences with an Indigenous understanding through a variety of exceptional courses.

A special emphasis is based on Ojibwe language and culture, history, governance and land base; the four elements of nationhood. Based on Ojibwe values, these educational and cultural opportunities prepare our students for success in the world beyond the classroom. They are also designed to prepare students to transfer to four-year programs of study at other colleges and universities.

The credits a student earns at LLTC are accredited and will transfer to colleges of the student's choice, depending on the transfer equivalency guidelines.

The basic requirement for an Indigenous Leadership A.A. Degree is the completion of 63-65 credits. Students completing the requirements for this degree are not required to complete Ojibwe Language studies beyond the two semesters required of all students at the college who seek any Associate of Arts Degree.

Graduates will be able to:

- Read, write, understand, and speak Ojibwemowin at an introductory level.
- Apply Anishinaabe critical thinking skills using Anishinaabe world views and values in academic, personal, and community situations.

Aside from immediate career options, completion of this degree prepares students for further study in indigenous language and culture or in the discipline of their choice.

Indigenous Leadership careers may include:

- Cultural Education
- Government and Public Administration
- Leadership management positions in business, organizations (private/public/tribal/non-profit)
- Hospitality & Tourism
- Human Services
